

Project Description: Computer Vision and Data Science

This project aims to develop a robust understanding and practical application of Computer Vision and Data Science principles. The primary focus will be on leveraging machine learning techniques to process and analyze image data, using the MNIST dataset as a foundational example. The project will encompass data preprocessing, model building, training, evaluation, and deployment, culminating in an Optical Character Recognition (OCR) system according to the relevant PDF and the topics mentioned